Bally is more a matter of "akin" these days, than enything else. For this reman beauty is more easy to attain now than it has ever been before. Fet there are mittions of women who are positively making it hard for themselves, and I might say too, that the thousand and one preparations sold for the purpose of beautifying the skin help to make it hard instead of easy for the women themselves. The trouble is that the impredients are nearly all the same, and when you have tried one you have

As society is at an end here, and the ball will not be held, princess Mary has occupied herself in assisting war relief work and in writing a moving picture play. This play was actually produced.

The author took the part of a nurgery small in the piece. One of the daughters of her aunt, princess Royal, played another character, while three more parts were taken by children of two members of the royal household. The picture was shown after a dinear party in the palace one night. The action is laid in a school room sed the sining room of the palace, where the pictures were really taken.

Queen Mary refused to allow it to be played until she had read the manuscript, and made several corrections, striking out one character, an irritable uncle, which she thought might be comidered to carleature the kaiser.
